

The Autumnal Equinox
Sun Ingress into Libra - 2007
...and...
Jupiter in Sagittarius vs. Capricorn

NCGR Membership Meeting
September 28, 2007

General Mundane Observations

The Vernal Equinox (Aries Ingress) Determines the Whole Year (Same as the personal Solar Return).

Subsequent Ingresses are Subordinate to it -- Provide Continuity.

Localize the Ingress: Traditionally - run for the Country's Capital.
Also for your Location.

A 'Provincial Look' - to use a Famous Quote: "All Politics are Local".
Things Happen Everywhere, All the Time -- Focus on Our Area & Country.

Mundane Events are Never Happy or Positive, Not Even with Venus or Jupiter.

Aries-Libra Axis: Indicates Ecclesiastic Affairs (Church & Courts)

Time is Not Linear - Not simply going forward:
It flows backwards too, i.e. in All Directions.

As in the Personal SR -- Events Begin to Show Up Prior to the Date of the Upcoming Ingress.

Free Will Does Not Apply in Mundane Astrology -- It's about Historic Destiny.

Ptolemy, The Tetrabiblos:

Devotes a Large Part of the Tetrabiblos to Mundane Astrology:

The Seasons, Weather, Comets, Eclipses, Countries & Cities,
The Annual Cycle - Cardinal Signs Ingress

Determining the Vernal Equinox: When does the Year Begin?

Book II, Ch. XI, “The New Moon of the Year”

The New of Full Moon Nearest to the Ingress.

Preferred: The one After (the Sun is already in the Sign)

Observe: The Ruling Planet and the following Angles.

Timing: Transits (Sun, Moon) to the Angles

Determining the Effects: From the General to the Particular.

Sign Determination:

Affecting Human or Animals. The Size & Species of Animals

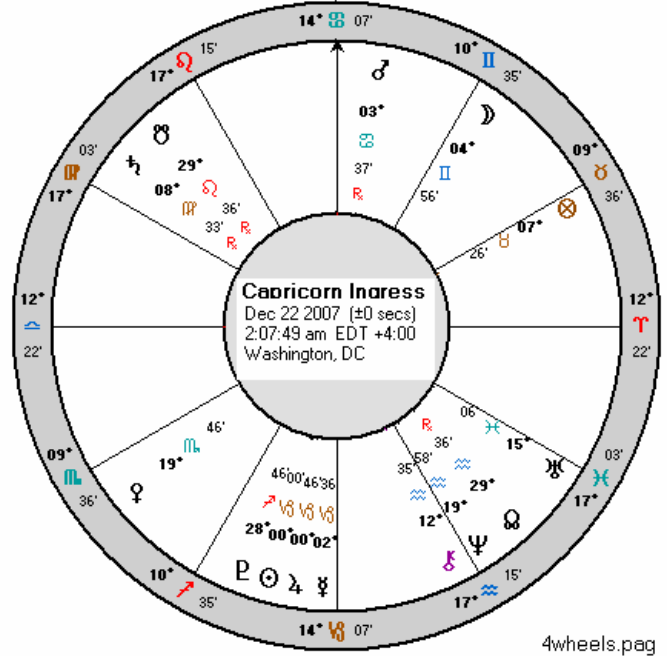

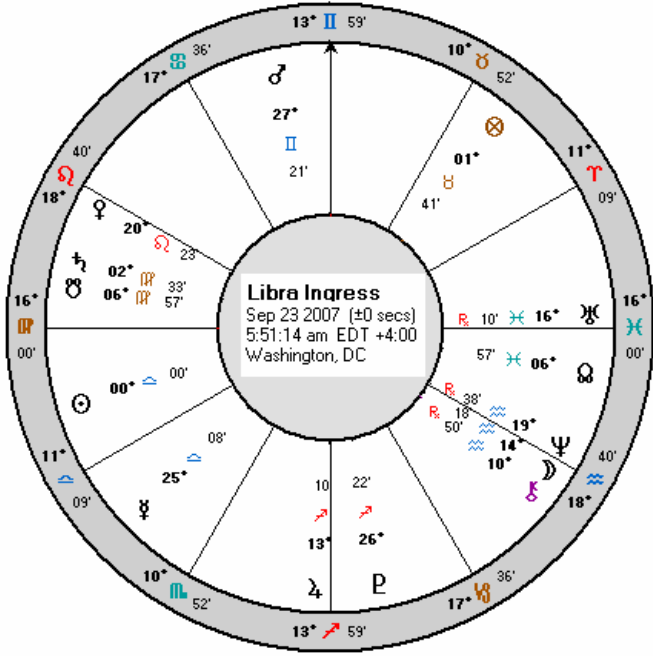

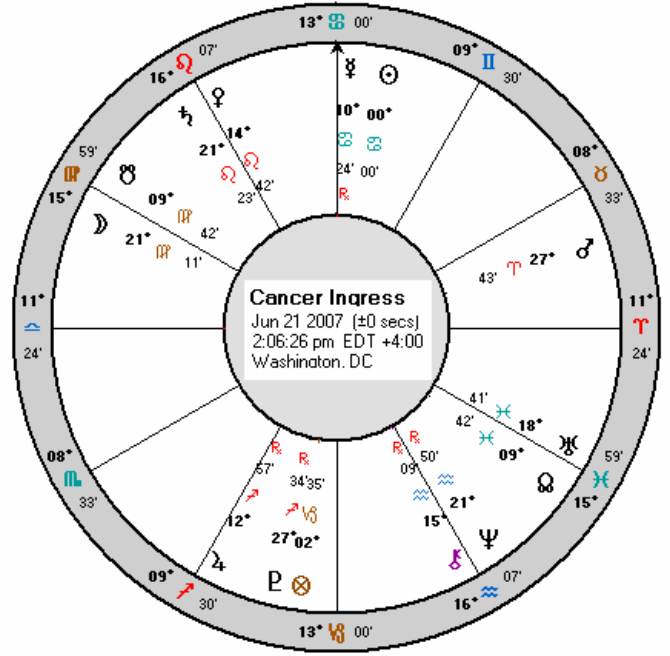

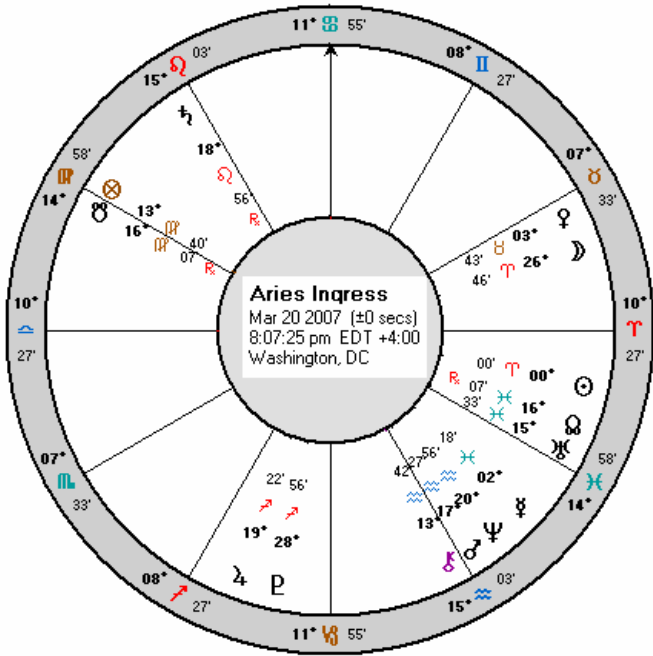

Temperature (Hot-Cold)

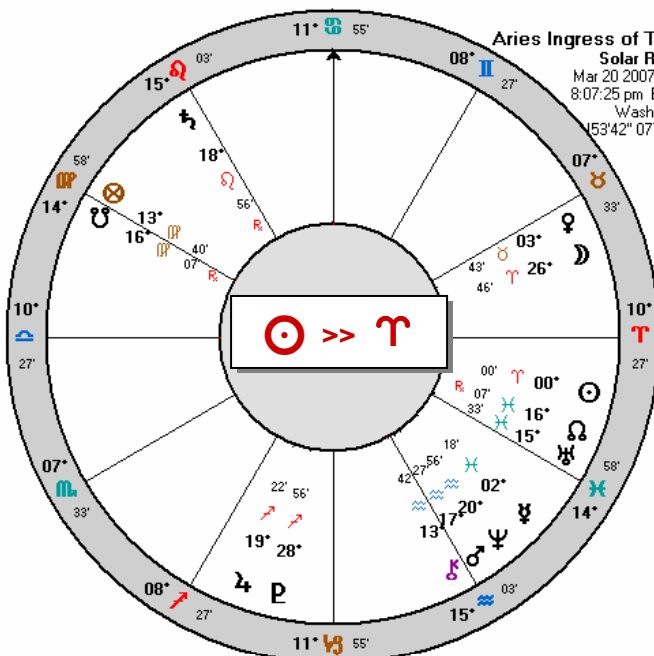

Humidity (Wet-Dry)

Planets:

Mercury determines the Weather !

(because it's near the Sun, and has rapid movements)

See: Columbia University's strategy to expand northward into Manhattanville is basically good for New York? Columbia urgently needs space—and Manhattanville, formerly an industrial area, has plenty of space to accommodate Columbia's handsome Renzo Piano plan.

... class antagonism generated by an exclusive, elite university bordered by struggling neighborhoods.

EMINENT DOMAIN'S UGLY THREAT But part of the hostility is due to Columbia's stubborn insistence on retaining eminent domain as an option to be exercised by the State of New York if Columbia cannot purchase privately all the land it believes it needs.

ONE MAN'S BLIGHT... Columbia argues that Manhattanville is "blighted," a condition that automatically allows the state to exercise eminent domain.

It insists that its goal is to "transform what is now a largely isolated, underutilized streetscape of garage openings, empty ground floors, roll-down metal gates and chain-link fences on the blocks from West 125th to 133rd Streets into a cohesive, reanimated center for educational, commercial and community life."

And there are many who argue that the neighborhood is already on its way back. They point to the artists' studios and lofts, the rehabilitated city-owned apartment buildings, the good restaurants, the successful manufacturing firms as proof that the neighborhood, far from blighted, is experiencing a natural renaissance. Sprayregen fully understands the irony of his situation. He operates a business in a neighborhood whose long, slow decline has been caused in part by the dead hand of industrial zoning—imposed by city government. Now that same municipally imposed decline may be pronounced "blight" by the state, triggering the loss of his property. "This is blight forced on the neighborhood by city regulations," he notes.
